While providing unprecedented job opportunities, technology is changing the legal profession from the way law firms and in-house offices operate, to the tasks that trainees are expected to complete.

In order to prepare young lawyers for the new legal landscape, ITLL conceived a unique and comprehensive program focused on obtaining deep knowledge of disruptive technologies, such as Blockchain, AI & Robotics, Big Data, Cloud Computing & IoT, both from a technical and regulatory perspective, while helping participants to develop IT-and personal-skills (i.e.: time and team management, lean thinking, advanced computer skills, legal design, personal branding) to bring into their legal departments.

To achieve these objectives, the program includes lectures as well as labs and practical sessions (mostly in Italian). Activities will be conducted by university professors and subject matter experts, including company founders, private practice lawyers and in-house counsels with in-depth knowledge.
